

Brethren & Neighbours,

It was a great comfort & kindness to me after the death of my wife, that the Town, of their own accord moved & voted to give & grant something towards her funeral charge, & in token of their respect for her, which they agreed should be done by way of Subscription; In consequence hereof I returned them thanks for more than ninety pounds, which I received. The like kindness they shew on occasion of my sons death, in making addition to my Salary. And if some notice had been taken of my Daughters death in this way, who was also dear to me, it would have been a great satisfaction to me.

I have understood that in the meeting of the 7th instant it was proposed to do something further for my support, & that one objection against it was, that I ~~did~~ not desired it. I would therefore now say, it will be very agreeable to me if any thing is freely done, & that in such way & manner as the Town shall ^{think} best, considering the great sickness that has been in my family, the necessary expence I have been at, and the cutting short my former & latter harvest.
